

Community Town Hall Conversation on Cognitive Health

More than 23,000 Rhode Islanders are living with Alzheimer's disease. With the aging of our population this number is expected to climb in the next few years. Our cities, towns and our state will need to take action—and we need to hear from the community.

Anyone with an interest is welcome—persons living with dementia, family and professional caregivers, health and long term care workers, curious citizens, students, state and local legislators, community leaders and first responders.
